Three cases of bronchial atresia were diagnosed in calves less than 2 days old and clinical signs in all cases were absent. The atresia was initially not recognized and bronchoscopy was necessary to properly identify it. The roentgenographic appearance of the bronchial atresia was similar to that of cases of bronchitis and bronchiolitis. The atresia was treated with antimicrobial drugs and antibiotics and the calves recovered without complications. A relationship between the causative agent and the development of bronchial atresia is discussed.import * as ts from 'typescript' import * as tsutils from 'typescript-utils' import * as util from '../util' import { TypeRef } from '../types' / * Monad type to serialize and deserialize to and from the database */ export type Serializer = (value: T) => any export class TypeSerializer { public typeName: string public serializer: Serializer constructor() { this.typeName = util.className(T).split('.')[-1].trim().toLowerCase() this.serializer = function(value: T): any { return value } } } / * Monad type to serialize and deserialize to and from the database */ export class MapSerializer
