GIBSON, Appellant, v. JON DEERE INDUSTRIES, INC., a Delaware Corporation, and Jon Deere Company, a Delaware Corporation, Appellees. No. JJ-487. District Court of Appeal of Florida, First District. November 27, 1978. Frank J. Giordano, III, of Frank J. Giordano, III, P.A., Tallahassee, for appellant. Michael T. Allen, of Garrett & Pyle, P.A., Tallahassee, for appellees. PER CURIAM. This is an appeal by plaintiff from a summary final judgment entered in favor of defendants. We affirm. Plaintiff owns 1,389 shares of corporate stock in a closely held corporation, *1260 but he was never the chief executive officer, director, or employee of the company. He was never employed by the company and the company was never sued or made a party to this action. Plaintiff alleged in his complaint that he purchased the shares in reliance upon defendants' oral and written representations that the company was indebted to him in an amount approximating $40,000. The complaint charged that defendants had breached certain duties imposed by law, including those based upon a theory of quasi-contract, so as to obligate defendants to pay him for shares purchased and others, which he did not own, when defendants knew that the corporation was not indebted to him. Defendants did not file an answer to the complaint but filed a motion for summary judgment. They argued that plaintiff could not be heard to complain about the corporation's failure to pay him because he had never been an employee or shareholder. This is a correct statement of the law. Slaton v. Hillard, 219 So.2d 6 (Fla. 1969). In this case, plaintiff was not an employee or shareholder but only a shareholder. As such, he has no standing to bring this action. Conlan v. Greene, 326 So.2d 85 (Fla. 2d DCA 1976). The judgment appealed from is affirmed. ENGLAND, C.J., and BOOTH and SHIVERS, JJ., concur
