and I've done a bunch of searching, mostly looking for a free version of some sort. Thanks for any help! A: ChartNexus XPerTrader™ is a unified trading system that combines a stock. FREE version upgrades, fast support, 14-day money back guarantee and more. ChartNexus XPerTrader™ is a free, open-source charting platform, designed to cover a wide variety of platforms, and which allows you to run your own trading strategies on the charts and charts of other users in a kind of "sandbox" environment. Notice the asterisk at the end of the free version? This is the problem. The free version only allows you to use the stock prices of the provided stocks to implement your trading strategy. It will not allow you to calculate your own moving averages, and other indicators, which are required for technical analysis. I don't know why they do this. Perhaps this is just a mistake in the description, or perhaps they want to keep you from doing technical analysis. In any case, this is a deliberate choice on their part, and they are, if you have to ask, not "free." Gene-edited baby Yanhua becomes first person in world to have CRISPR babies The report on the birth was released today. Beijing, China (CNN) -- China has become the first person in the world to have gene-edited babies through CRISPR, the genome editing tool that promises to revolutionize medicine and biology. The birth -- believed to be the first of its kind -- was announced by Dr. He Jiankui at the CRISPR International Summit in Hong Kong on Sunday. Last month, Dr. He claimed that he had produced two healthy babies born from gene-edited embryos. While the report on the birth was released today, the full scientific research detailing the work will be published in two weeks, according to the Summit organizers. The study was first reported by The New York Times. Dr. He's work is a major step forward in the field of gene editing, which has gained
