In one study, most of the villagers who had a street in front of their house wanted the street to be paved, because they did not need to walk on the wet surface and the soil could be used for the planting of trees. At the same time, the villagers believed that the presence of a paved street would attract outsiders and, as a result, their areas would lose prestige. It should also be noted that the roads for water canals are sometimes not paved, in order to protect the soil from the freezing water. With regard to the promotion of the tourism industry, the villagers' wish to build hotels in the mountainous area was partly for the promotion of tourism; however, they also wanted to build hotels in the coastal area for the same purpose. It was also reported that some of the villages would offer incentives to the tourists, such as tea, medicine, or food. Infrastructure Each village has its own cultural features. For example, Satsumasagi is a sub-village located in the central area of Hamada. Satsumasagi is surrounded by rice fields. The houses are built with no room for a bicycle. Roads are paved to connect with other areas, but the roofs of the houses are still made of straw
