Sounds simple, but it's not. I think of this principle as the "good guy's deterrent". Here are some examples: I've had people yell at me, call me names, push me to the ground, punch me and break things. I've had people threaten me with bodily harm, sexual assault, vandalism, and even murder. I've even been called a bully for not "taking it like a man." By its very nature, our body armor — the R-36 (Battle Hardened Vest) — is really hard to penetrate. So it provides a simple, easy, high-to-moderate degree of defense against various types of ammunition.
