Sinhala Lama Kathandara Pdf 56 Q: hide back button in navigator in ios when Back button is in corner I want to implement back buttons in ios with no gap from the navigation bar on both sides (iPhone 6). I am able to show back button properly, and in the middle of the screen if it is in "round" shape (iPhone 6). But the issue I am facing is on iPhone 6, if the back button is shown in the corner like in the first image then it shows gap between the back button and the navigation bar. This only happens on iPhone 6; other iPhones show back button without any gap. In the picture you can see the red line is the gap. My code in viewWillAppear: self.navigationController?.navigationBar.setBackgroundImage(UIColor(), for:.normal, animated: false) self.navigationController?.navigationBar.shadowImage = UIImage() self.navigationController?.navigationBar.setBackgroundImage(UIColor(), for:.highlighted, animated: false) self.navigationController?.navigationBar.layer.borderWidth = 1.0 self.navigationController?.navigationBar.layer.cornerRadius = 25.0 and for back button: self.navigationItem.hidesBackButton = false Is there any other solution to handle it properly? Thanks in advance for any help. Edit: After changing the corner radius to 1.5 it is working properly. But there is another issue in which the shadow of the back button is not being applied. A: Here is a simple solution : use a custom view of your navigation bar. I created one, and added a shadow to the button: import UIKit class CustomUINavigationBar: UINavigationController { override func layoutSubviews() { super.layoutSubviews() borderImage.set() borderImage.frame = bounds clipToBounds = false
