Fifty malignant fibrous histiocytoma (MFH) and synovial sarcoma (SS) were transplanted into athymic rats. They all were heterotransplanted intraperitoneally, so that only a small number of cells were required. Only MFH gave a subcutaneous tumor after 3 weeks' implantation, but not after 4 weeks' implantation. SS caused a subcutaneous tumor at 2 weeks' implantation and a peritoneal tumor at 3 weeks' implantation. The smallest number of cells transplanted that could cause a subcutaneous tumor was $2 \times 10(3)$ for MFH and $7 \times 10(3)$ for SS. It was a reasonable approach to use the smallest number of cells that could cause a tumor of MFH or SS.Lamborghini Lamborghini The brand Lamborghini was established in 1963, by Ferruccio Lamborghini, in the land of the supercars; Italy. The Lamborghini started to offer a V12 car, the 400 GT, after the success of the 350 GT, which won the 1966 and 1967 1000km Côte d'Azur. This was followed by the 350 GTL (1965), 350 GTV (1966) and finally 350 LM (1967). Despite being completely built by Ferruccio, the car and its design was done by Jody Scheckter, who took it as a project to enter the rally for the 1966 British Saloon Car Championship, becoming the first ever "WRC" winner, in 1967. The supercars that followed were the Miura, MiTo, Murciélago, Reventón and Gallardo. They were all very successful for Lamborghini, as they won lots of races and were famous amongst racing enthusiasts.
