It was the fourteenth race of the 1986 FIA Formula One World Championship. The race was won by Nigel Mansell, driving a Ferrari, with his teammate Piers Courage second, and Stefan Johansson third in a Williams. There was drama in the race when Johansson spun off during the previous lap, rejoined the track, and placed himself in the lead. Mansell, having also led the race, pushed on and won in the final laps. Johansson was penalised for having passed Nelson Piquet under the safety car. While Johansson complained that he had been overtaken on the last lap, by having dominated the race, Piquet was incensed that he had not been awarded the victory: he contested the stewards' decisions and appealed to the Grand Prix Drivers' Association, but their verdict was announced on the eve of the European Grand Prix two weeks later and was mostly in his favour. Qualifying Qualifying was a battle between the two top runners, Mansell and Courage, both on the tail of pole sitter Stefan Johansson. Mansell had to work hard to gain from Johansson, but managed to improve his time by 1.3 seconds to P3; Johansson managed P5, this time ahead of former champion Juan-Manuel Fangio who had qualified P6 (following a gearbox change). Third at the line was Carlos Reutemann, his first ever Formula One start since his European Grand Prix and subsequent retirement from the sport, the collision with Ayrton Senna during qualifying at the previous race the result of which also contributed to the downfall of the Williams team. Race Mansell and Courage had a race to win, with Mansell leading the way. Just before the halfway point of the race, he had a 1.3 second lead and was able to hold on, making the most of the tailwind. He was finally able to pass Courage on the final lap (who had
