It stars Salman Khan, Abhishek Bachchan, Sonakshi Sinha and Boman Irani. The screenplay was written by Rajat Arora, Abhinav Singh Kashyap, Krishna Rao and Javed Siddiqui, while the story was written by Javed Siddiqui and Abhinav Singh Kashyap. The film features the songs "Khuday Kay Saathiya" by Arijit Singh, "Nagma" by Sad Master, "Dhund" by Gulshan Grover and "Teri Behen Bulaye" by Abhijeet, which was sung by Arijit and Sad Master. Abhinav Singh Kashyap worked on the background score. The film was released worldwide on 10 December 2010. On 23 December 2010, Salman Khan was injured while performing a stunt sequence in the film. He fell from a height of 10 metres, and broke his wrist, while shooting a fight sequence with Rajat Arora. Khan was treated in a hospital and required 60 stitches to his wrist. Later the film was postponed indefinitely. The film was released on 10 December 2010 in India and around the world as a full-length 3D film, however, it was cut to 2D with the original soundtrack and lyrics as a result of limited release. The production of the film began in March 2009, with the film being shot in the United Kingdom, Spain and London, where the bulk of the film was shot at Shepperton Studios. The production resumed in September 2009, and the film was briefly delayed due to the director's original crew not returning to the location. The film was also briefly shelved after Abhinav Singh Kashyap was accused of plagiarism, which was proved false. It was also shelved after Kareena Kapoor Khan walked out of the film after realising that it was being produced under the banner of her husband and brother-in-law. Dabangg features Salman Khan as a Mumbai cop who has to fight against the gang led by Boman Irani. Plot Deepak (Salman Khan) is a cop living in Mumbai. One day, when he is coming back home, he is spotted by Don (Rajat Arora) of the gang "India". Don's men attack Deepak, and beat him badly, but he survives. Deepak is seriously injured in the head and legs, and his right arm is broken. Deepak is admitted to the hospital,
