

shows up as Windows XP pro Home Edition ? daniella_chocho: try installing ndisgtk then run ndisgtk and go through the process well, when the command starts with sudo i think that is the message but i am really not sure how do I prevent grub from mounting the root filesystem when booting? diego_: does: dmesg | grep wlan0 output anything? yes it says it has found a network diego_: can you paste it at pastebin it says i have found a network i cannot paste anything right now can you get a shell for a few minutes? !pastebin
