the first recordings I ever put out was a mix-tape called 'Brass Trousers', and this is the song I recorded and produced it with. When I put out my first mixtape I was around 20 years old and it was a great way to learn more about production and make some good friends. I'm still pretty much on the same path, and I put out my first album last month – 'Real Life: Dreams Of Music'. I've been writing my own stuff for years, and it's been hard to get any traction because I have a tendency to keep writing more and more songs until I've written around 100. I've always had this sense of responsibility to write something I can call my own, but I'm slowly beginning to realise it's just a sense of responsibility, and it's always been there. This song was the result of finally getting up the courage to put everything out there. Some of the synth sounds and samples used were all taken from my collection, but they were all still taken from a very real place in my life. I grew up listening to a lot of Latin music, and I've had the opportunity to perform in some amazing surroundings, but a lot of my friends are still waiting for opportunities that will never come. I'm still learning every day, and I'm still writing. All I know is that I will keep doing this until I'm ready to move on, because there's just no place like this place. This is where the real music is. -Tim C - Listen to 'Real Life: Dreams Of Music' here:

Designed by famed Delay Audio founder Stephen Guthrie, Colour Copy is a unique analog delay effect. With a flexible, analog design, the plugin features a classic bucket-brigade device (BBD) where the delay time is calculated by the number of clock cycles that pass through the cascading capacitors. This novel delay setup allows you to dial in accurate delays by simply turning the delay rate, as well as modulate the feedback with an LFO. Version History Version 1.0 - May 5, 2012.

Version 2.0 - April 29, 2013. Version 3.0 - August 30, 2013. Version 4.0 - August 20, 2014. Version 5.0 - September 26, 2014. Bud This is a free plugin released by Fabio Zanonato. It's a multipurpose percussive effect for both acoustic and electronic music. The plugin comes with all the features you expect from a free plugin such as LFO, volume and panning controls, automation and a nice set of presets that also include a wide range of easy-to-use techniques. The plugin has a simple interface that isn't very flashy, but you won't have any problems using it. Most importantly, I think this plugin is going to appeal to electronic producers, especially those interested in using percussion with synthesizers and also those with deep knowledge of mixing acoustic instruments. A 12th-note effect Bud has 4 modes, each of them focuses on a different technique: – When triggered, Bud effects the pitch of the incoming signal based on the value of a LFO. – It is also possible to use the low-pass filter to obtain a pitched-down effect. – In addition to this, the plugin has an envelope which controls the delay, making it possible to adjust the pitch of the sound within the delay loop. – Finally, you can use the built-in effects to change the sound (in particular, the pitch) based on different parameters. Versatility and functionality The plugin can be used in many different ways, but it has the ability to simulate the following effects: – An auto-scaling arpeggiator for creating patterns – An algorithmic plucking effect – A simultaneous staccato trigger for triggering short sounds – A length-dependent echo effect – A standard delay or tape effect – An echo effect with stereo spread control

“With Colour Copy, you can give your tracks that special something. Turn the delay knobs to create the perfect sound for whatever genre you are working on. Here's my favorite way to wake up and take a bath in the morning, for the times I want to indulge myself with a little luxury. It's simple, relaxing and the water is usually the perfect temperature. This morning I did this using one of my favorite products: the Salt Lamp. I love adding salt to my bathwater because it's super cleansing. If you don't have salt lamps I've got a great one that has the most amazing ceramic glass that's absolutely gorgeous. Or, if you're still looking for something different, I've got this one: These are also great for purifying and I can even use it to light a scented candle to get the mood going. Enjoy. I've been having so much fun putting together a lot of my Christmas cards, and in fact, I haven't done much in the way of gift giving or decorating. Part of this is because I have a super easy gift idea for everyone and part of this is because I've been trying to get away from the winter holiday funk. Let's be real, it's not fun to see people's faces while they're battling an entire winter's worth of colds and flus. But, I did put out a couple of gifts. I've had them in my closet since the beginning of November. These are small, simple and actually very meaningful: I'
