Adobe Photoshop is a very powerful piece of software. It has evolved over the years to keep up with the high demand for photoshopping, which continues to make its name for itself. The following tutorial will teach users the basics of applying editing layers, manipulating images, and creating compositions for print and presentations. If you have no previous knowledge of Photoshop, this tutorial will walk you through step-by-step how to use Photoshop to create a simple but professional-looking beach-themed illustration. It will explain the techniques as well as the tool tips and shortcuts, which are available by pressing the Ctrl+Shift+[] or [] keys on your keyboard. There are also a number of YouTube videos that demonstrate the steps included within the tutorial. These videos can be found in the sections, "Equipping a Photoshop Session," "Naming and Creating an Image," "Making a New Layer," and "Applying a Layer Mask." Tools and Photoshop Keyboard Shortcuts This tutorial involves the use of the mouse and keyboard for most steps; however, it can also be done using Photoshop's tools as shown in the video. Tools (mouse) Adobe Photoshop uses a layered system for editing and manipulation that allows for complex effects. While the mouse is used to position layers and select layers and any other tools needed for the job, a keyboard is required for most of the operations. These instructions are for keyboard-only usage. However, mouse pointers can be used as well. First Things First Before starting any Photoshop project, make sure that you have a good image of the project you want to do, or check out the following complete image to get the idea. Make sure it's the correct image for the project and that it's of high quality. You can always go back to the program after the project is finished to edit it, but if you do not have a good image or the image is low resolution, it will be harder to edit it. Step 1 Open Photoshop. If this is the first time you're using the program, it should ask if you want to set up a new document for the project. Set the document size to 300 dpi and a resolution of 300 ppi. This is the typical resolution that most images are saved and most print materials will be printed at. For this tutorial, we will be working with a black background. Step 2 To open the blank canvas press Ctrl+N. By there is a showing of extraordinary circumstances, there is no presumption that the Court's exercise of jurisdiction was improper. Equifax, Inc. v. FIS, Inc., 677 F.2d 1039, 1044 (4th Cir.1982). The burden of showing extraordinary circumstances to rebut the presumption that it is not fair to force the non-resident defendant to go to court in this forum rests on the party who would avoid it. Id. Plaintiffs state in their opposition to the motion to dismiss that they are a "remotely injured" victim of the fraudulent acts of Mr. and Mrs. Lange, a couple who was a "long time friend of Mr. Lentz." Plaintiffs further aver that Mrs. Lange was employed by Lentz at an office in which she made the preparation of the ERISA plan documents at issue. Neither party has alleged that Mrs. Lange was employed in any way by Financial Management Services. Plaintiffs state that Mrs. Lange would have access to the Financial Management Services' offices. *503 The fact of Mrs. Lange's involvement in the preparation of the documents at issue in this case is not enough to show any extraordinary circumstances, to avoid the exercise of jurisdiction. Although Plaintiffs describe in their opposition brief that Mrs. Lange was a "long time friend of Lentz," Plaintiffs do not allege that Mrs. Lange worked on this plan or that her friendship with Lentz was anything more than a normal friendship. Additionally, it is even more questionable that a friendship would suffice to show that it would be fair to force Mrs. Lange to defend this suit in this forum. IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Doc. # 8) is hereby GRANTED, and the clerk is DIRECTED to enter judgment in favor of Defendant and against Plaintiffs. @import '../variables'; @import '../mixins'; .ais-advanced-search { flex: 0 0 auto; margin-top: 15px; .form-field { flex: 1 1 auto; margin: 0; padding: 8px; .input { border: 1px solid $color-silver; } } } Q: Simple dynamic programming function didn't work I am new to dynamic programming in python.

user's network, the user can experience a lower cost per bit and a reduced maintenance cost for a correspondingly greater number of subscriber lines. An additional benefit is that many of the pre-existing and commercially available termination and distribution devices can be used. Thus, the user may have fewer expensive and cumbersome termination and distribution devices to purchase and maintain. A related benefit is that the cost of ADSL services can be spread over a greater number of user lines due to the user's ability to have fewer termination and distribution devices. This not only reduces the cost per bit to the user, but also reduces the price per user line. Yet another benefit is that the user may have to pay less for a corresponding line rental because of the reduction in the required number of termination and distribution devices. In one embodiment, the network is configured such that the user has a single ADSL line that is connectable to the primary switch through any of the plurality of protection switch devices. In this embodiment, the primary switch can be configured such that the primary switch is aware of a switch or switch connection failure or some other event that may require the switch to be in a protection state. The switch failure or event may be communicated to the primary switch over the user's ADSL line. In response, the primary switch may communicate to the protection switch devices a command to connect the ADSL line to one of the plurality of protection switch devices. In one embodiment, the user's ADSL line is a xDSL line, which is ADSL over the cable of a telecommunication system, such as an Asymmetrical Digital Subscriber Line (ADSL). In one embodiment, the ADSL line extends between a first set of ADSL network components of the primary switch and a second set of ADSL network components of the primary switch, and the primary switch communicates a circuit connection to the protection switch devices using an interconnecting cable. In one embodiment, the ADSL line extends between the first set of ADSL network components and the second set of ADSL network components, and the primary switch communicates a circuit connection to the protection switch devices using a trunk group line of a telephone network. In one embodiment, a device of the first set of ADSL network components is a termination device, which is configured to couple the ADSL line to the telecommunication system, and the device of the second set of ADSL network components is a distribution device, which is configured to couple the ADSL line to a receiving device of a receiving
