Certificates Management Password Protection on the Documents Supports PDF Digital Signatures PDF Encryption in a Compact App PDF Encryption is one of the most powerful tool for the protection of PDF files. PDF Encryption works by encrypting the PDF file using standard XCA based encryption and the decryption is handled by the PDF reader when opened the encrypted file. To enable PDF Encryption, the PDF file is encrypted using the standard XCA format. After the encryption process, the standard XCA format is replaced with a new format created using a proprietary algorithm known as XCA PEM (Passive Encryption Module). The XCA PEM file contains the information that will decrypt the PDF file. If the PDF is encrypted, a new reader that supports the XCA PEM format needs to be installed on the computer. The image attached shows the XCA PEM and PDF file properties. I've compiled the project, and am in the MainController. The main difference I see between this and other examples is the lack of RunTimeConfiguration class. However, when I add it to the web.config, it errors with a CS0234: The type or namespace name 'App_Code' does not exist in the namespace 'System.Web' (are you missing an assembly reference?) It looks like I need to do something like this: `App_Code.Core.ChangeSortOrder = (string sortOrder) => { return SortOrder.asc(sortOrder); };` But I've never seen the namespace App_Code before and I've not found it on Google. How should I
