Wind turbines were used as early as the Middle Ages to grind grain. Wind turbines are currently used for a variety of purposes, including electrical power generation, pumping water, and, in some cases, pumping water for irrigation or desalination. Wind turbines generally include a rotor with a series of blades, and a gearbox connected to the rotor. The rotor may be powered by the wind driving the blades, and the gearbox is coupled to an electrical generator to convert the rotary motion of the rotor into stationary rotation of an electrical generator. } });
