I'm trying to setup a machine for development where the only software on there is just php running an Apache server and a MySQL server. I'd like to remove as much as possible from a clean install. I'm able to remove apache and php, but when I try to remove the mysql server I get a dependency error, which I can fix by removing another package. Is there a way to find the dependency and then try and install with the opposite dependencies? The error I get: Unable to correct problems, you have held broken packages. Package mysql-server is a virtual package provided by: mysql-server-5.0 5.0.37-1ubuntu8.2 You should explicitly select a package for installation. The following packages have unmet dependencies: mysql-server : Depends: mysql-server-5.0 (>= 5.0.37-1ubuntu8.2) but it is not going to be installed Depends: mysql-client but it is not going to be installed mysql-server-core-5.0 : Depends
