Great questions, but before we get to that, I want to update you on what the holidays mean to me! Well, actually it's my business which loves these holidays as they are a great platform for business development. In case you didn't know, I have co-founded a company, which is on an expansion journey, which lets me spill all my business secrets on you. I will be answering all your questions in a separate post, but to be honest, I'm more excited about what these holidays can bring to my business. For now, I have rambled on about the holidays, so let's get down to business. Business sectors across the world are taking advantage of the holiday season for sales; some even start from mid November onwards and end in the first week of January or beyond. Here's why, and how you can benefit from this. The Fall session is usually a good time to think about investing your money in a business idea, before you are too busy and the season is almost over. In fact, some investments do not require that much capital, but they can help you to cover up the expenses that you face, when you start your business. A few months ago, when I was planning to move on to a new house, my friend from work came up with a great way to celebrate the new house. That's when I realized that the celebration of house move is more important
