Are there any ways to save or heal the angry, desperate parka with tail attached to you? I have this animal, I'm not sure where I can look for solutions to how to stop it from attacking and eating my flesh. I'm scared I will be eaten alive. Help! I did this to my dog, it was an accident but the tail was attached and it didn't stop him from attacking. I've read you can't train a dog, and it's best not to own one, but if you do get one, I found a site that gives quite a bit of info on how to train a dog. It's here: It talks about how to come when called, and how to bark at people. Sounds like you might be able to follow some of it. Your pup might actually like people though, and that could make him a better guard dog. How did you create your environment, did you open them up and let him sniff around? If you can find some info on how to train your dog and utilize it, it could help. there are a lot of cases where a dog will attack a person...people are afraid of dogs for good reasons...people get bitten...people have died from dogs biting them...dogs will naturally attack people that they perceive as a threat...there is no way to stop that. but people should know how to deal with dogs, and other animals that may become threats to them.
