A: We don't know for sure, because there is no support from EndNote's developers. However, let's look at the possibilities (from a technical standpoint): The file is digitally signed, and the key is in the digital certificate, which has not been revoked. This would be very secure, but the certificate is very old. The file is digitally signed, and the key has been revoked. This would be a big problem: EndNote now says the certificate is invalid, and the software can't verify the signature. The file is digitally signed, but the key has not been revoked, and there are no errors in the signature. This would not be a security problem, but it means that people can now generate their own cracked version. The file is not digitally signed, so the signature has been invalidated. This would also not be a security problem, but it means that people can now generate their own cracked version. The file is not digitally signed, but the signature is valid. People would be able to replace the entire file with a cracked version, but they could not create their own cracked version. A: You can find the relevant contact information at the top of the EndNote help file: To receive product security updates, please contact us. Questions regarding EndNote version support should be directed to our support team. You can reach our support team via email at endnote.support@mylibraries.com. Pregnancy outcome of women with uterine leiomyoma associated with leiomyomatosis peritonealis disseminata. To evaluate the pregnancy outcomes of uterine leiomyoma associated with leiomyomatosis peritonealis disseminata (LPD) as compared with those of cases of leiomyoma without LPD. Pregnancy outcomes were compared in women who delivered between 2001 and 2006 because of uterine leiomyoma associated with LPD (n = 9) or women who delivered before 2001 because of uterine leiomyoma without LPD (n = 14). The mean age of the LPD cases was 32.8 +/- 2.3 years and that of the control group was 35.0 +/- 2.6 years (P = 0.11). The mean weight of the patients in the LPD and control groups was 64.8 +/- 3.8 kg and 70.8 +/- 3.3 kg
