The research paper of London-based hedge fund playwright and businessman, Sir David Blake, says the Conservative party would benefit from a new referendum but new polls show support for separation "varies from a strong majority to a distinct minority". It is the first time a market player has revealed the extent of disenchantment with the UK among voters in Northern Ireland. Sir David also says: "In a normal election cycle this (a new referendum) would be a fairly insignificant matter, but...in the current context we suspect the situation is altogether different." Sir David says: "Several years ago it would have been inconceivable that the Conservative party should have required unionists in Northern Ireland to vote for it. Now, thanks to Sinn Fein's tactics, it is a distinct possibility. 'A first step has been
