Storing data in a Photoshop file Photoshop automatically saves your work after processing an image (as you can see in the preceding figure). In other words, it saves the pixel information of an image file in a set of files (actually, in a separate file per size and/or format). In Figure 10-5, the image file size of a JPEG, which is the image format used by most websites, is shown. This is the default file size used by Photoshop. But for web presentations, you have a few options. *

Q: can we store previous moment in the history document using MongoDB? I am thinking of using the timestamp document in MongoDB to store the past events in my database. Can I use the timestamp document to store the past events? If possible, can you give me an example of how I can do that? A: Yes, you can store events in the historical timeseries database, which you probably already have. The moment.js library is probably what you are looking for to store the time as a timestamp. MongoDB can store documents which include this, as you can see in the manual. To give you an example of how this works, you would have a collection like this in your database: { _id: ObjectId('123456789012'), event: 'event.1', timestamp: Date('Thu, 30 Dec 2011 20:00:00 GMT'), } ...and the 'event.1' would be a moment.js event. But not only that, you would be able to reference it: moment(document.querySelector('#event').getAttribute('timestamp')) ...and then you would be able to perform queries on it like so: db.events.find({timestamp: {$gte: moment(X)}}); (where X is a moment) You could even store a count of the occurrences of each event in the same database as this, if you have a different unit of measure for it, e.g. 'points', or'minutes': { _id: ObjectId('123456789012'), event: 'event.1', timestamp: Date('Thu, 30 Dec 2011 20:00:00 GMT'), points: 10 } ...and then you would be able to do queries like: db.events.find({event: 'event.1', timestamp: {$lte: moment()}}); Which will look for a document that has an event value of 'event.1' and a timestamp value which is earlier than the current moment. A: MongoDB stores timestamps in the BSON Date type, which like javascript dates aren't moment.js aware. So you can use moment.

Q: Remove table row according to condition I have the following code for appending row to a table. Is it possible to change the code to remove specific row according to some condition? $('#table tr').last().after(''); A: $('#table tr').last().after(''); $('#toggle').click(function() { if($('#table tr').last().attr('id') == 'delete') { $('#table tr:last').remove(); } else { $('#table tr:last').after(''); } }); (Photo by Jeremy Litt/SOPA Images/LightRocket via Getty Images) (CNSNews.com) – In his final State of the Union address, President Barack Obama renewed his call for Congress to authorize the construction of the Keystone XL Pipeline, which would bring oil from Canada to refineries in Texas. "On the forty-ninth anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s stirring 'I Have a Dream' speech, Americans all across our land continue to struggle for freedom, equality, and justice," Obama said. "But from Selma to Stonewall, from Madison to the Alamo, the cause of freedom has been advanced through the faith and determination of ordinary people." "They marched for justice, and today we are one step closer to making that dream of freedom a reality," Obama said. The president said the construction of the Keystone XL pipeline "would create jobs, while at the same time, we can say with conviction that it's the right thing to do." "We know that dirty oil from the Canadian tar sands would contribute to higher gas prices here at home. We know that it would add to our dependence on oil from the Middle East, and that it would increase our carbon pollution. In the best of all possible worlds, that oil would be
