Distant Desktop: Remote Desktop Control View and control your computer from another remote computer that is connected to the internet. Works with all Windows operating systems. Download Distant Desktop Distant Desktop was last modified: April 3rd, 2019 by Guru_Laxman Today, remote working is the new normal, therefore developers have come with more and more straightforward solutions to allow instant remote access. Remote control applications not only that allow anyone to access centralized resources from the distance, but they are also perfect for troubleshooting sessions and help desk assistance. Suggestively called Distant Desktop, this application makes it possible for you to control any PC remotely, regardless of location. With such an application, you can break down the geographical barriers and get instant access to resources, no matter where you are. Connect with the remote PC in an instant There is no need to go through a setup with Distant Desktop. In fact, its developers created one of the simplest remote desktop control applications out there. Nevertheless, keep in mind that the application must be launched on both the local and the remote PC for everything to work. When launching Distant Desktop, a small window is displayed, comprising an ID and a password. The unique credentials are automatically generated for the local computer and must be shared with the remote PC for it to get authorized for remote access. Alternatively, if you want to control a remote PC, then you must press the "Connect." button and enter the credentials provided by the target computer user. After adding the application as a firewall exception on both ends, the remote session is initiated. You can start one or multiple connections at the same time and each is displayed in a new tab. Share files and exchange messages with ease Working with Distant Desktop is quite easy. The remote desktop is shown, allowing you to interact with all the items exactly as if you were in front of the target computer. At the same time, the controlled PC running Distant Desktop can see the number of remote connections. Files can be shared from one computer to the other without a lot of hassle. You can either send a file on the local PC or send a sharing request to the remote host. The built-in chat allows you to communicate with the other computer in writing but keep in mind that you can also record an audio message and
