Beach Party 2 Game Pusoooy

A Sandy Hook massacre survivor who claims she had close encounters with the dead, a troubled woman with an unbalanced mental health and a professor of a German university are among those who are not convinced by the official version of the events. An American family of six from Sandy Hook who are regarded as "heroes" of the Colorado massacre in 2012 have suddenly reared their head in the Netherlands. Their daughter Ami, 5, said the massacre that left 20 schoolgirls dead was "all wrong" and her parents had repeatedly been taken away by the FBI. juegos pusoooy "Seven-year-old Ami's mother Aviel is a former school teacher and her father Levi, a former nurse. She is the daughter of outspoken survivor Mady. Two married Sandy Hook mothers, Julie and Patricia, visit her in the States when she is in kindergarten. "Julie said she heard one of the dead whisper her name and give her a sleeping bag, but that she is not a believer in ghosts." Patricia says she was touched by a silver tree branch that woke her up in the middle of the night. The city of Aurora, Colorado, has suddenly emerged as a hub of controversy over its role in the 2012 Sandy Hook massacre, partly due to the attention received by the city's chief of police, Matthew A. Harris, who was fired this week for using Facebook to express his "right-wing views." Free of wooden planks, crutches or wheelchairs, the Sandy Hook parents seem somehow like an ordinary family with their children, who have since moved on to different areas of the country. Anyone who visits their website can count on to be treated to 4-5 images of their life. Pretty images, very good used by a little girl of five. "Ms. [Julie] said she asked Ami about the shooting at school and her parents have been questioned by the FBI. Ami answered Yes I was in the school and I saw lots of police. She told her mother the dead people were talking to her." 16 remarks on "Sandy Hook parents meet again in Netherlands" Express.nl. "Do not believe this: Ami said the dead were communicating with her at school and they told her to make up stories to get sympathy," Julie said, according to the Daily Mail. "Ami, 5, kept repeating "I'm not making it up I'm not making it up I'm not making it up," her mother said. While her parents told her they did not
