FWsim. Dec 23, 2017 FWsim Pro 2.3.2.10 Enterprise. Dec 23, 2017. V3.1. Perinatal features of fetuses with Down syndrome. Twelve fetuses with Down syndrome were examined with ultrasonography before and during labor. All had certain anomalies: three had large placentas, one had an oligohydramnios and three had a cleft palate. Ten of them had a second fetal anomaly. The most frequent was the combination of a ventricular septal defect and an echogenic lung. The echogenic lung was most often seen during labor. In one case there was also a pleural effusion. The echogenic lung did not indicate a poor prognosis in the majority of cases.[Cytomegalovirus infection in a patient with rheumatoid arthritis]. We present a case of a 61-year-old man with rheumatoid arthritis (RA) in whom cytomegalovirus (CMV) infection was diagnosed by a culture of throat swabs and a seroconversion after an increase in the antinuclear antibody titer. The patient was treated with intravenous ganciclovir with a favorable outcome. The first clinical manifestation was an abnormally low grade fever without an identifiable cause. Four months later the patient had developed arthritis, arthralgia and facial rash. Examination of the synovial fluid from the left knee joint showed marked lymphocyte infiltration. Electron microscopy of the synovial fluid revealed inclusion bodies suggestive of a diagnosis of CMV infection. After treatment with intravenous ganciclovir, the level of CMV antigenemia declined within three weeks. The possible etiological role of CMV in the induction and exacerbation of RA is discussed.HLA-B27-associated oligoarthritis: the clinical phenotypes and their treatment. Since the discovery of HLA-B27, its association with the phenotype of ankylosing spondylitis (AS) has been studied in many countries. Five clinical types of HLA-B27 associated arthritis with specific phenotypes and outcomes have been described: reactive arthritis, spondyloarthropathy (SpA), psoriatic arthritis (PsA), arthritis of undetermined type (referred as undifferentiated arthritis, UAA), and arthritis associated with iritis (referred as iritis associated arthritis, e24f408de9
