In-home pulse oximetry has been shown to be a highly effective way of monitoring oxygenation in the critically ill infant and child. We present a review of the literature evaluating the efficacy of in-home pulse oximetry as an adjunctive measure in the treatment of children with hypoxemia. In-home pulse oximetry is extremely useful for the bedside clinician to monitor oxygenation and thus facilitate identification of hypoxemia in the acutely ill pediatric patient. In most of the literature reviewed, in-home pulse oximetry was used as an adjunctive measure for the management of hypoxemia in children. Current data suggest that in-home pulse oximetry is an effective tool in the evaluation and management of hypoxemia in the pediatric patient. Archive for July, 2012 "Jesus is the name above every other name..." — Psalm 8:6 The name of Jesus is given to me for good: and I have said, the Lord is my high tower, and my fortress, and my deliverer; to me victory is born in the air. – Psalm 18:2 "Jesus is the name above every other name." With those words, an individual is given the power and authority of the name of Christ. A name is given to that person as a title, a name that is attached to them. It is a title to them. What is a name? A name is a label. It is something we use to describe someone or something. It describes that person or thing. It is a description of that
