Q: Metasploit Virtualbox/Palo Alto and PuTTY: a lot of times the host IP cannot be resolved I'm trying to connect remotely to a virtual machine running on VirtualBox/Palo Alto. This Vm has a lot of services on listening (80, 8085, 9000, etc), but I can't resolve the host IP even when I use the internal IP of the virtual machine (192.168.1.121) as the only DNS server. Trying to use the DMZ mode results in some weird behaviour: I can't resolve the host from the guest (192.168.1.121, and other subnets in the network of the Vm), even if I try to use the external IP address of the host (172.16.1.22) I can't resolve the host from the host (172.16.1.121, or 127.0.0.1). (With the same external IP address as DMZ) I can resolve the host from the host (172.16.1.22). Why? I don't want to use DMZ. A: I managed to fix it, I just needed to open the internet connection on the virtual box from inside the VirtualBox VM. You can do that by adding one cable between two of the virtual machines' network cards.

Bledsoe Peak Bledsoe Peak is a peak, high, in the Wyoming Range of the Rocky Mountains of North America. The peak is located in northwestern Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming, United States. Bledsoe Peak is on the Continental Divide and is the source of Bledsoe Creek. Bledsoe Creek is a tributary of the Teton River. Bledsoe Peak is in the valley northeast of Bledsoe Lakes. Historical names Bledsoe Peak is named after Robert Austin Bledsoe, who was the first to climb the peak during the summer of 1871. Bledsoe and Henry C. Gill climbed through the top of Matterhorn Canyon during July. The two men were subsequently unable to descend through it and were forced to scramble over a steep snow slope instead of descending through Canyon Creek. Bledsoe preferred to return to the Divide at the location of today's Garnet Lake rather than ascend the

There are more than 600 species of sweet long-horned grasshopper in the world, of which 130 are found in China. Researchers have recently found more than two dozen of them in China's Qinghai Province. The plant species name of the long-horned grasshoppers is Metopolophium rufonigrum. Nearly a dozen types of the sweet long-horned grasshopper have been found in China's Qinghai Province. During field surveys in 2017, China's Entomological Society selected and found 14 species of the sweet long-horned grasshoppers in the province. Among them, M. rufonigrum is an endemic species, which is only found in the Qinghai Province. Additionally, the 'fuwujiao' or Kangbushan sweet long-horned grasshopper was also discovered in the province. Image 1: The sweet long-horned grasshopper 'fuwujiao' or Kangbushan sweet long-horned grasshopper 'fuwujiao'. The scientists were able to find the insect in the Kangbushan mountain range with the help of local residents, who spotted the grasshopper on the mountains. The title is inspired by its shape, which resembles a bus. Image 2: The sweet long-horned grasshopper 'fuwujiao' or Kangbushan sweet long-horned grasshopper 'fuwujiao'. Additionally, the entomologists identified another 13 species of the same insect. According to the researchers, the local residents had a hard time recognizing the grasshoppers. Astonishingly, three of the species are from the family Acrididae and are commonly found in Europe. This is the first time that they have been found in China. The Amur cockchafer (Melolontha melolontha), common mud-dragon (Limnogonus infernalis) and rosette grasshopper (Schistocerca gillae) were found in the province.
