You may edit this page if you follow the Wikipedia community format. To get started, you need to sign up with Google or Facebook. Google Sign In Facebook Sign In. The main purpose of this Wikipedia Zero is to offer free, high-quality, and reliable knowledge to everyone, everywhere. Wikipedia is a free encyclopedia project that relies on donations. The more people see this page, the more we will grow and the more we will provide. These facts are not opinion, they are not false, but they may be outdated. Wikipedia Zero (sometimes written as Wikipedia. org) is a web site created and run by the Wikimedia Foundation. It offers free knowledge with clear text and easy navigation, powered by an editorial staff of more than editors, to create and share the sum of human knowledge. . Content that represents the views and opinions of others. There are no articles in this language section. . The name comes from "Wikipedia Zero", a zero-cost model for delivering knowledge. It's a project to make Wikipedia free for everyone, everywhere. Similar to the Google search engine's home page, this page is only available to the Wikimedia Foundation's mobile apps and the web. There is no English version of Wikipedia available directly on this website; however, the mobile Wikipedia apps and the websites of some nonprofit organizations such as Human Rights Watch often direct the user to this page to offer English-language references. Its policy is to host reliable and neutral knowledge, and to add encyclopedia articles in any language, wherever experts, writers or editors are available to write them. The Wikimedia Foundation has a dual policy, which requires that the same Wikipedia Zero content is available to every Wikipedia user, both on desktop computers, mobile devices and personal storage. It refers to this as neutrality or user access. All Wikipedia Zero content is released under free licenses, which help ensure its reliability. For users who do not have mobile access, Wikipedia Zero offers a desktop web interface. However, since the interface does not use search or navigation,
