Note Because Photoshop is not a DTP program, it's not essential to buy all the additional add-ons that the program offers. You can purchase and download additional plug-ins or extensions from the Adobe website. * The 3D workspace gives you the ability to add dimension to your work by placing shapes into an image or generating text bubbles and other 3D shapes such as planes and cylinders. If you need to convert files into 3D files, use Photoshop's 3D workspace to create 3D objects. For example, you can use this workspace to create a 3D model of a house or a glass bottle, as shown in Figure 12-5. Chapter 3 explains more about 3D, and Chapter 17 has more information on using the 3D workspace. Photoshop's 3D workspace enables you to create 3D objects and then easily convert them into video, flash animation, or other 3D media. * The Free Transform tool lets you distort shapes by moving, stretching, and rotating them. To use it, select a shape, and then press Shift+F10, or choose Free Transform from the Transform menu. Be sure to check the Properties panel for the description of the shape's current settings. The Properties panel appears whenever you select a shape and press Spacebar (to open up the panel). Figure 12-6. * Photomerge is a feature that lets you combine multiple photos (or other layers)

Efficacy of antiemetic drugs in neurosurgical patients on postoperative day 1: a meta-analysis. Postoperative nausea and vomiting (PONV) is one of the major complications in neurosurgical patients after operation, which can prolong postoperative stay and increase hospitalization costs. The authors performed a meta-analysis to evaluate the efficacy and safety of different antiemetics in the prevention of PONV in neurosurgical patients after operation. This systematic review and meta-analysis was performed according to guidelines published by the Cochrane Collaboration and Preferred Reporting Items for Systematic Reviews and Meta-Analyses statement. Sixteen trials (924 patients) satisfied the inclusion criteria, comparing single or combined treatment of placebo, dexamethasone, ramosetron, ondansetron, tropisetron, tropisetron plus ramosetron, ondansetron plus tropisetron, aprepitant, or palonosetron with 5-HT₃ receptor antagonist. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to cosmetic compositions and more particularly relates to cosmetic compositions which when applied to the hair yield a glittering appearance. 2. Description of the Prior Art The cosmetic art has used seeding materials for the provision of the desired glittering appearance. Typically, glittering materials have been formed on the hair by providing a small particle of a glittering material which has been pressed against the hair to provide the desired appearance. This process has the disadvantage that the glittering particle is applied to the hair during styling. This can be somewhat of a nuisance. More recently, titanium dioxide, a bright white material which has been used for coating fabrics has been employed as a glittering material. Generally, in order to achieve the desired appearance, titanium dioxide is applied in a fine powder form. However, the fine powder allows the titanium dioxide to move to other areas of the hair. Further, the fine powder is difficult to work with when being distributed onto the hair. A hair treatment composition containing titanium dioxide is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 4,734,278. The composition is formulated with a hydrocarbon material and a wetting agent to provide a glittering hair treatment composition. The titanium dioxide is present in an effective amount for imparting a glittering appearance to the hair. However, the coating of the hair is generally opaque and the coating does not permit the hair to be dyed. Also, the titanium dioxide is diffused into the hair. U.S. Pat. No. 4,926,822 discloses a cosmetic treatment composition which comprises titanium dioxide and a conditioning agent. The conditioning agent can be an oil or water soluble organic surfactant. The titanium dioxide is provided in a small particle form. There is no disclosure of a surface treated titanium dioxide. U.S. Pat. No. 3,901,855 discloses a glistening mixture which is applied in hair and a brushing action is utilized to provide a flow of the mixture onto the hair. The mixture includes titanium dioxide and a matrix material. The matrix material is selected from the group consisting of mica, cellulose, asbestos, styrene-butadiene copolymer, polyacrylate and the like. U.S. Pat. No. 4,540,505 discloses a hair treatment composition and method for the application of the composition. The composition contains titanium dioxide, inorganic oils, an organic solvent and water. The titanium dioxide can
