Virginia Gas Prices, Prices Falling All Over The U.S. Average regular gas prices in Virginia increased more than a nickel during May, dropping about eight cents nationwide, according to a weekly survey by the U.S. Energy Information Administration. However, the federal agency says the nationwide drop was less than half what it reported last month. Virginia prices were down less than half a cent. "In Virginia, gas prices fell sharply, and have not yet caught up to average prices just three months earlier, which were 21 cents lower than the current prices," the report says. The Virginia report found that statewide average price was $3.76 a gallon, $.72 cheaper than a month earlier and more than 5 cents more expensive than last year. In May, the EIA noted that gas prices were down more than a nickel in the Northeast, Midwest and West. Comments Tom, I disagree. When you pay the gas companies a bunch of money, they want you to come back so they can make more of it. I've seen some of the sticker prices lately and I'm guessing if they really paid a nickel more per gallon I'd be seeing pump prices much closer to $4.
