Affiliate income can be very rewarding for sites that feature the products and services of other businesses. Although this can be a simple process, it may sometimes take you a fair amount of time to manually drag and drop the files from one folder to another. There are various reasons you might choose to convert your files using a program such as AdvocateScore Outlook Express to.ost Converter, which is perfectly suited to the task. The need for such a tool may have arisen when you were automatically saving files in the.ostx format in an attempt to simplify the file management process. If you are a member of the SOS group, then you will already be familiar with the advantages of using this file format. This format is Microsoft's own attempt to simplify file management by converting files into a single folder and is considered by some to be a better alternative to the.ost format. What makes the AdvocateScore.ost converter so useful is that it enables you to perform batch conversions of the files in a single operation. Q: tikzpicture: defining and using shapes I have a node with rounded corners which I am drawing.

```
\documentclass[tikz,border=10]{standalone}
\usepackage{tikz} \usetikzlibrary{shapes}
\tikzset{rounded corners/.style={rounded corners=#1 }} \begin{document}

`\end{tikzpicture} \end{document}` the result is this I would like to have text inside as the node looks like it's not centered vertically. I can either use some kind of padding/margin or change the end of the line to more than what 1cm. Is there any other solution? A: If you would like to have rounded corners, i.e. a `\path (label1.north west) -- (label2.north east) -- (label2.south east) -- (label2.south west) -- (label1.south west);` then you have to use a path that has rounded corners, namely the polygon shape. The difference is that you have to draw that shape with coordinates and then fill it with text. Here is an example that

```
\documentclass[tikz,border=10]{standalone}
```

```
\usepackage{tikz}
```

```
\usetikzlibrary{shapes.geometric} \tikzset
```
