I am running windows xp through virtual box. I was upgrading ubuntu studio and I think I may have overwritten my virtual box files and have lost my windows xp setup. When I try to update virtual box from the software center it says it can't be installed because I need to install the kernel headers first. I have tried sudo apt-get install virtualbox-dkms and I get the following: The following packages have unmet dependencies: virtualbox-dkms : Depends: virtualbox (= 5.0.32-dfsg-0ubuntu1.14.04.5) but 5.0.32-dfsg-0ubuntu1.14.04.5 is to be installed I have tried to remove all those files that are uninstalled and I get this: Reading package lists... Done Building dependency tree Reading state information... Done E: Unable to locate package virtualbox E: Unable to locate package virtualbox-dkms How can I get the virtualbox dependencies installed? I have already tried sudo apt-get update and I still get the following: Reading package lists... Done Building dependency tree Reading state information... Done Some packages could not be installed. This may mean that you have requested an impossible situation or if you are using the unstable distribution that some required packages have not yet been created or been moved out of Incoming. The following information may help to resolve the situation: The following packages have unmet dependencies: virtualbox-dkms : Depends: virtualbox (= 5.0.32-

One of the most helpful tools available when you decide to buy a home is a comprehensive home valuation report. A well-researched and professionally prepared home valuation report will set you up to make a fair, informed decision regarding the purchase price of your new home. What Exactly Is A Home Value? The value of a home is the appraised value based on what a knowledgeable and informed buyer would pay for it. The home value report you receive from a local lender is usually based on recent comparable home sales in the area. Home valuation reports and home value estimates are produced by local real estate agents. An agent can provide you with a comprehensive property report, including a detailed list of comparable sales that sold within the last year. These recent sales will help you compare the properties you're researching to the ones that have recently sold and determine the proper fair market value for your property. How Is A Home Value Reported? A lender will look at a home's value based on comparable property sales in the area. The agent who prepares the report, or his or her service, compares the value of the home you are investigating to the most recent sales of other comparable properties sold in the area. If you're lucky, the agent will have access to one or more nationwide databases that have consistent, up-to-date data. When figuring out what a home is worth, a home valuation report takes into consideration both the internal features and the surrounding neighborhood. The agent will look at the property's zoning, physical features and improvements, yard, lot size, property line, and surrounding neighborhood. Types Of Valuation Report There are three different types of real estate valuations used throughout the industry. A market appraisal is an approximate indication of the value of your home. The market appraisal takes into account the entire area in which you're located, including its proximity to major public transportation and major thoroughfares. A recent comparable sale is more specific to your property because the value of
