Vatican abandons fight with ousted Argentine archbishop HAVANA - The Vatican has conceded to the removal of a former archbishop from his position in Argentina and said he will have to live on the salary he would have earned if he remained in his job. Vatican spokesman Father Federico Lombardi has expressed satisfaction with the agreement that ends a confrontation dating to July when his predecessor in Argentina was expelled. "The Holy See took very seriously the demands expressed in the document. It may seem like an affirmation but it is not... but it is a reciprocal gesture that expresses how the Holy See understands the fact that this structure has to be respected," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview on Sunday. The accord came Friday at a summit of the Argentine bishops' conference in the German city of Mainz. The Argentine bishops' conference is a separate legal entity that governs all Catholics in the country. But the Vatican said it would not recognize any decisions made by the conference. Archbishop Jorge Bergoglio, 76, was made cardinal in February and he has been living at the papal residence of Castel Gandolfo near Rome since the installation. In an interview aired in July on Radio Centro, Bergoglio said that the court agreement and the payment of his retirement pay would not go into effect until the Church in Argentina made a final decision. He would continue as a cardinal with his full salary, which the church said at the time was b7e8fdf5c8

Q: Is there a good self-hosted alternative to Google Photos for syncing to mobile devices? Looking for software to sync to mobile phone. Cloud photo app installed Cloud photo app syncs to mobile phone All this software has to do is syncing folders of images. For example: - Home - Pictures - Videos Download all images Automatically sync home folder (folder includes pictures, videos, music, documents) on phone When phone is plugged into computer, sync pictures from phone and home When phone runs out of space, move photos into FreeStorage (bandwidth needed) Is there a good solution for this? A: Instead of Google Photos, I use Syncthing. I'm only syncing one folder of images per device. This works perfectly for me. Free open source software (MIT license) Sync local folder with Dropbox/OneDrive/Gdrive/GitHub (or whatever) Way faster than Cloud Photo Older version available from Debian repos If you need more than one folder, use a tool like Flexie or Satori to integrate Syncthing.

The proposed research focuses on the elucidation of the cellular mechanisms involved in the sequence-specific recognition of DNA by the histone gene regulatory complex, which includes octamer binding protein (OBP/TFIID), tRNA-leu, yeast RNA polymerase III, and the general transcriptional factors TFIIB, TBP, TFIIA, and TFIIE. The major objectives of the proposed research are: (1) to solve the structure of the OBP/TFIID complex, (2) to determine the three-dimensional structure of the tRNA-

This screensaver is most likely the most realistic one available. It's based on actual images from NASA's CloudsSat project. NFS CloudsHD has the most realistic clouds and snow ever seen on your monitor - even better than those you would see from a jet, or a satellite. You can change the time-length of the day that the sun appears in clouds as well as the intensity of the sunlight, the brightness of the sky colors, the size of the clouds and snow on the ground. The customization options are very advanced, and extensive documentation is available for you to configure the scenery to suit your needs. Flips-From-Side-to-Side: This screensaver takes advantage of the fact that most computer monitors do not flip the screen side-to-side, so that images don't have to be flipped every time. This dynamic screen saver calculates the relative position of the sun and the screen and determines the order in which the images will appear. The sun will rise from the right and the ground in front of you, then move to the left in cloud-veil, then towards the left until you are below a cloud in the middle. Then it will start to move towards the right. The sky will be the darkest at the top, and then it will slowly become lighter towards the bottom. The snow will be seen on the ground first, then the mountains, then the bushes, then the water. The snow will fall before the clouds, and then the sun will appear, and then the rain will be seen - and then the sun will come out again. When the sun is fully above the horizon, the sun and sky will be seen from the top side of the screen. As the sun descends to the horizon, it will get smaller and closer to the bottom of the screen, causing the sun to disappear behind the mountains, and the ground to be close to the bottom of the screen. Clouds will constantly shift and move, and will not stand still for too long. The sky will be either entirely cloudy or entirely clear. Multiple Screensavers: You can adjust the time length of the day (1 day to 6 days) as well as the day and night transitions. You can have the sun appear full-screen or only a part of the screen. You can have the sun rise or set at sunset or sunrise. You can have the clouds rise or only part of them, and you can adjust the intensity of the sun and sky colors.
