The intensive SIDS-surveillance in several European countries has failed to detect a single death of a newborn attributable to SIDS. The recent implementation of the Finnish SIDS-surveillance in 1996 resulted in an increase in number of diagnosed SIDS cases from 4.4 to 13.8 per 100,000 live births. However, it became clear that the increase in number of diagnosed SIDS cases was mainly due to over-diagnosis of near-miss SIDS cases. In Finland near-miss SIDS cases are defined in law as cases of sudden death of a non-viable newborn in the vicinity of the baby's birth in two or more or at least one of the following risk factors: (a) the mother was not delivering at a health institution; (b) the mother lost the ability to concentrate during labour as the result of maternal fatigue; (c) the newborn was born by cesarean section; (d) the newborn was of a very low birth weight (Spectrophotometric determination of cobalamin in foodstuffs. A simple and rapid method for the determination of the vitamin B12 in foodstuffs based on the formation of a coloured product with aniline-4,5-dibromo-3-methyl-phenylhydrazine (ABPM), a diazonium salt, is described. Absorption was measured at 510 nm and a calibration curve was prepared from 0.1, 0.5, 1.0 and 3.0 ng ml-1 of cyanocobalamin. The accuracy was expressed as the percent recovery at three concentration levels.A top Muslim cleric in the Philippines has called on Muslims to convert the country's President, Rodrigo Duterte, "so that God might forgive him." Yet the reality is far different. China's real estate market continues to grow at the fastest pace in history. Chinese real estate developers have seen rising demand as China, the world's second-largest economy, is expected to maintain its double-digit economic growth this year. The country's real estate market is expected to grow by 5.6 percent this year, according to a forecast by CITIC Securities. Analysts noted that the U.S. market is slowing down as the trade conflict continues. "We do not anticipate any significant changes from the market," said Chen Xiaochuan, chief economist at China Minsheng Securities, a leading securities firm in China. "We expect the real estate market will maintain its momentum in the face of the current uncertainties." Given these expectations, what are the main reasons the real estate market in China is booming? "China's real estate market is undergoing a transition from an economic growth driven market to an urbanization driven market and rental-equity driven market," said Zhang Xiaojin, head of research for China property agency CBRE. Rents in China's cities have doubled between 2009 and 2016, and the minimum requirement for a new resident to be able to afford a housing unit increased from 4,700 yuan ($707) per month in 2009 to 8,500 yuan per month in 2016. In addition, the number of rental housing units was 31.4 million units in 2015, the most among the 47 developing countries in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which showed strong demand for rental housing. These factors drive the growth of the apartment rental market, d0c515b9f4

A prospective, randomized, clinical study of the effects of 2 modalities of microwave coagulation therapy, given separately or in combination, for the treatment of liver cancer was undertaken. Patients with liver cancers were randomized to either the microwave coagulation alone or the combined microwave coagulation and microwave coagulation therapy groups. The efficacy, safety, and survival rates were compared between the two groups. A chi 2 test was employed to determine the treatment outcome and the survival. Thirty-four patients in the microwave coagulation alone group and 33 in the combination group were evaluable. No major difference was seen in the overall therapeutic effect between the two groups. The combination therapy revealed a superior survival in comparison to the microwave coagulation alone ($P = 0.05$). The combination therapy is more effective, safe, and has a longer survival than microwave coagulation therapy alone in the treatment of liver cancer.This invention relates to a packaging technique for assisting the automated assembly of a multi-piece electronic device, such as a mobile phone. The device could include any number of components, for example a printed circuit board having a connector, or a multi-chip module having a chip-carrier disposed within a package. In automated assembly of electronic devices, it is often necessary to connect components, such as printed circuit boards or multi-chip modules, to one another. Connectors, including electrical connectors, are commonly used to provide for the electrical connection between components. An electrical connector may be used to connect a printed circuit board to another printed circuit board, or the electrical connector may be used to connect two printed circuit boards together. The printed circuit board may, in turn, be connected to additional printed circuit boards or to other devices, such as other components of the same electronic device, to form an electrical path for electrical signals or power. It is often the case that the component or printed circuit board which is connected to the electrical connector will be attached to the remaining printed circuit board by use of any one of a variety of automated processes. For example, it is known to use automated pick and place machines to perform such assembly. One or more components (such
