Keyboard Tricks Photoshop has a helpful onscreen keyboard that makes it easier to find commands. You simply tap one of the four navigation keys on the keyboard (they look like arrows with rounded ends) and a menu of editing commands appears along the bottom of the canvas. This onscreen keyboard is different from the _real_ keyboard you use when typing text. You can adjust the size of the keys and add a few customization options, including a task bar on the bottom of the program that displays buttons for tasks like opening files and opening the menu bar from the last used command. You can also add shortcut keys to Photoshop, which you press to perform an action or choose a command. (See Figure 6-18 to learn more about the customization options.) * * * Figure 6-18 Add new commands to Photoshop via the customization options panel.

As Photoshop is very popular, there are some Photoshop alternates. However, if Photoshop isn't for you, you can use Adobe Photoshop Elements and become a pro in your own business and professionally edited images online with a seriously good looking website. In this Photoshop tutorial, you will learn how to create a logo using Photoshop Elements and how to use some more additional tools in Photoshop Elements. Step 1: Getting Started This tutorial will show you how to create a logo for a design you're working on, or you can make one for use on your own website or business. First, you need to create a logo asset file. You can create different versions of the same logo for different uses, such as the business version, a personal version, a file version for use on your website and so on. Visit this link to create a PDF file. Step 2: Using the Paint Bucket Tool (P) to Fill in the Color You'll use the Paint Bucket tool (P). To do this, click Paint Bucket (P) in the Tools panel. The Paint Bucket tool is used to fill color. In this tutorial, you will use the Paint Bucket tool to fill the color of the background of the logo. Step 3: Using the Marquee Tool (M) to Draw a Rectangle While the paint bucket is still active, you will use the Marquee tool (M) to create a rectangle on the canvas. Note: When you use the Marquee tool, you only add shapes to the canvas, so you don't apply any font or image changes. Step 4: Edit the Colors of the Marquee Rectangle Click the paint bucket's paint color box and change the color to #ffffff (RGB:255,255,255). You'll change the color of the paint bucket to #ffffff. Press A to select the entire Marquee rectangle. To edit the colors of the Marquee rectangle, simply click on any of the colors of the palette. This will change the color of the rectangle. Step 5: Use the Color Picker Tool (C) to Change the Color The colors on the Color Picker Tool (C) can be changed by clicking and dragging inside a color box and then choosing the color you want. Recurrent spastic diplegia and cerebral spongiosis: a new hereditary ataxia. We have encountered a new autosomal recessive cerebellar ataxia. In all, 10 affected persons in three generations have been seen in our clinic. The clinical picture is characterized by a spastic cerebellar syndrome in combination with cognitive and behavioral abnormalities. The onset is typically during the first few years of life, but further neurologic deterioration occurred subsequently. The cognitive disturbances include dysexecutive and motor functions. Abnormal emotional behavior and hyperlexia have been observed. The MRI scan shows significant corpus callosum atrophy. In some cases, a cerebral spongiosis is detected histologically. Studies of the neurophysiologic data have not yet been completed. The genetic linkage to chromosome 10 was excluded by several analyses in four of our probands. The clinical phenotype of our patients strikingly resembles that of spinocerebellar ataxia types 1 and 2. Variations on a scientific theme by Ivan Misner Menu Box Bloat: A Visual Consideration Just yesterday I attended a talk given by Scott Petry at a small music school in my city. The talk was actually a summary of a talk given by Petry and his co-worker Greg Hovind at a career fair at a local college. The talk was meant to provide practical insights into what it's like to be a jazz musician and how he got a job playing jazz at a local college. It was an incredibly insightful talk that I can only hope others had the chance to hear. I don't know if that school provides music education that provides an appropriate preparation for students to succeed in a wide range of careers. If they do, then I think the music teacher did the band major a tremendous service by talking about what it's like to be in a band and how it can translate to other careers. If they don't, I think the speaking team missed a great opportunity to help students picture future career paths. My point with this post is to highlight one aspect of the talk that resonated with me and that wasn't something I realized until afterwards. Scott Petry talked about the need to make a strong connection in a band as an essential part of the process of building a successful group. The important point he was making is that the better you connect as a group to one another, the more effectively you can communicate with each other and the greater

[Sugar metabolism and tolerance of Lettuce (Lactuca sativa L.) to phosphorus toxicity]. To study sugar metabolism and tolerance of Lettuce to phosphorus (P) toxicity. A pot experiment was conducted to examine the effects of different doses (0, 20, 40, 60, 80 mmol x L(-1)) of P on sugar metabolism (fructose and glucose) and the activities of key enzymes (fructokinase [FRK], glucose-6-phosphate dehydrogenase [G6PDH], hexokinase [HK], invertase [INV], sucrose synthase [SUS]) of Lettuce. Low doses of P increased P concentrations of roots and leaves, and decreased shoot-root ratio. FRK activity in roots was not affected by P treatment, while HK and SUS activities of leaves were decreased by 80 mmol x L(-1) P treatment. Other P concentrations (20, 40, 60 mmol x L(-1)) didn't affect HK and SUS activities, while HK activity of roots was suppressed by 80 mmol x L(-1) P treatment. In addition, P contents of roots were significantly decreased by P treatment. P concentration in leaves was significantly increased by P treatments. In the process of P accumulation, FRK activity was not affected, but G6PDH and HK activities in leaves were decreased by 80 mmol x L(-1) P treatment, while INV and SUS activities in roots were not affected by P treatment. Sugar metabolism was affected by P treatment in different ways, and P tolerance was significantly related to P accumulation.//
