Former Vice President Joe Biden is Hillary Clinton's secret weapon in winning the state of Wisconsin in the 2016 presidential election, according to a new report. As Clinton mulls entering the 2020 presidential race, The New York Times reported Biden is "a powerful asset for her" and that he has "clear appeal in states that she has struggled in" and "in areas that Republicans will need to win in order to gain back the White House." Clinton, however, may not have a choice. The former secretary of state is facing mounting pressure to enter the race after Elizabeth Warren, the progressive Massachusetts senator, announced her candidacy last month. The Times noted Biden is thought to be her best hope of maintaining momentum after a 2016 primary campaign that was perceived by many Democrats as an "it-is-what-it-is affair," pitting Clinton against Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, who became the Democratic nominee. Biden is also a favorite among many of his party's Q: How to input data in Arduino Ethernet shield without having a SWI instruction I am trying to input data into serial port of a arduino ethernet shield.

(Emulator(windows)) (1) I am using the function

port.write(data,5) to send the data byte by byte. But I am not able to input the data. (2) My alternative way is to send all at once. But I am not able to send data. How can I achieve either of these. I think I am missing an interrupt or something. A: The library is designed to work on 32-bit microcontrollers, so you'll have to find an alternative for the interrupt on the Xmega model. I have
