ecosystem have a longstanding history of collaborating to solve pressing IT challenges for the world's largest businesses. This year, Red Hat announced its acquisition of a technology that will enable the engineering and automation of complex and hybrid cloud architectures, bringing the collaboration between these two industry powerhouses to an even higher level of success. By employing Red Hat OpenStack Platform as a foundation, enterprises and service providers can build with a single platform for cloud and OpenStack-based hybrid cloud solutions. OpenStack is known for its ability to scale from small to large deployments, making it highly adaptable to any number of computing needs. This allows organizations to embrace faster and easier digital transformation, while also allowing for a more secure operation. With today's announcement, we are excited to announce an alignment of the two companies, recognizing that we bring the best of both worlds together. This includes the most comprehensive offering from Red Hat, delivering an OpenStack-based solution to automate and extend the breadth and depth of your enterprise and cloud footprint. Enterprises and service providers can now combine the benefits of OpenStack, Red Hat OpenStack Platform
