Went down to see the security screening, all set for my shuttle flight to O'Hare Tuesday morning. Not exactly what I'd hoped for since my flight was for 7:40, I'd like to have been in the air before dark. Once there, was asked to change my ID photo (the picture for the new card), and had to have it done quickly before my screening, which was held at the gate, since we were on the tarmac. I didn't do too well. Asked for a whole new card, with no time to create it at home, so I asked for a small one, with my real name (my name at home). Got it back, and have to buy another one there on Monday. It was a blur, as was the security screen. The gate security person wanted to talk to me, because she was with two other senior citizens, and they are "strangers."
