PhotoCraft by Ableton: This is a beginner's tutorial with projects on the introduction of the program, working with layers, masking, working with retouching, and general productivity tips. Some old presets from Photoshop also work in PhotoCraft. (www.photo-craft.com) Because PhotoCraft and Photoshop are so similar, I describe the differences in the sections that follow. If you're a beginner, PhotoCraft may be enough for you; however, if you're ready for a more in-depth tutorial, you should move on to Photoshop. Adobe InDesign CS5_ (Adobe InDesign): This is a beginner's tutorial on working with layers, text, and basing a layout. The tutorial includes step-by-step instructions to create a simple layout in InDesign. (www.adobe.com/products/indcs5.html) For more info on getting started with this program, check out the sections on editing text in Chapters 8 and 9. Adobe InDesign CS5_ (Adobe InDesign) Tips: This is a video tutorial with InDesign tips. The tutorial focuses on working with the toolbox and setting up the workspace. (www.adobe.com/products/indcs5.html) You can access this video to learn how to place text, create a layout, and insert all sorts of graphic elements from shapes to drop shadows to text boxes to clip arts to layer masks to type styles to expand and contract image layers, and much more. This is an hour-long video tutorial; however, you can bookmark it so you can get to it whenever you have a need. The video features Tim Green of the International Magazine Publishing Institute on the subtopics of text, shape, place, layout, and more. Adobe Illustrator_ CS5 (Adobe Illustrator): This is a video tutorial that helps you understand the basics of working with Photoshop. It walks you through common tasks that Illustrator beginners face. Illustrator is used throughout this book to illustrate certain concepts. id', { type:'select2', label: 'User', placeholder: 'Choose a User', data: oldUsers.data, source: this.context.data.users } ) ); expect( this.element.getElementsByClassName('select2').length ).toBe(1); expect( this.element.getElementsByClassName('select2').at(0).getAttribute('data-id') ).toBe(oldUsers[0].id); }); }); DNA sampling with unsupervised automated systems. The use of the polymerase chain reaction (PCR) has made it possible to extract DNA from many samples without the need for microscopic examination. The fluorescence-assisted sample preparation (FASP) technology for DNA extraction and purification, based on magnetic bead purification, was further modified with unsupervised operation. With this system, more than 100 samples can be processed simultaneously. Samples can be placed into the wells of 96-well-tubes and DNA isolated within 2 h. The efficiency of DNA extraction was compared to protocols based on silica columns, silica beads, magnetic beads, and magnetic beads modified with magnetic nanoparticles. The only limitations to the application of the FASP technology lie in the use of tubes, and the formation of bubbles in the tubes during pre-mixed PCR reaction. Similar levels of DNA recovery were obtained in comparison with silica column-based kits and magnetic beads or magnetic nanoparticles. The study indicates that, in contrast to magnetic beads or magnetic nanoparticles, magnetic beads chemically modified with magnetic nanoparticles provide greater DNA recovery. Because the purity and yield of DNA preparation is the most critical step in molecular biology, the new system may be suitable for small scale DNA analysis.Sowing Armageddon Sowing Armageddon is a 2006 Lifetime Television film directed

A field study of the toxicity of mono-2-ethylhexyl phthalate on adult male bank voles. Oral administration of the plasticizing component mono-2-ethylhexyl phthalate (MEHP) to rodents (rats, mice) has been used to demonstrate its effects on reproductive and developmental systems in addition to its previously observed effects on the immune system and the endocrine system. The reproductive and developmental system of bank voles (Clethrionomys glareolus) is often compared with the rodent systems and might be an appropriate field study system to determine the potential effects of environmental exposure to chemicals on this highly social species. In the present study, the potential effects of MEHP on the reproductive system of adult male bank voles were investigated. A total of 27 adult male bank voles were dosed by gavage for 14 consecutive days with 12.3 micromol MEHP/kg body weight/day or 0.1 mmol MEHP/kg body weight/day. Volumes of ejaculates and numbers of spermatozoa in ejaculates were reduced in the MEHP-treated animals, indicating a loss of sperm viability. The weights and organs of the animals did not indicate any significant side effects. Proliferative cell nuclear antigen (PCNA), an indicator of cell proliferation, was used to evaluate whether the adverse effects on the reproductive system were due to reduced cell proliferation in affected tissues. PCNA immunohistochemistry did not reveal any significant changes in testis, epididymis, or vas deferens of the treated animals as compared to controls. A new risk for transaminase-initiating drug-induced liver injury. A 54-year-old woman with hypertension developed severe transaminase-inducing hepatic injury 4.5 months after the initiation of a tricyclic antidepressant, mirtazapine, after a course of prednisolone. The Cmax/MIC of mirtazapine was as high as 320 (mg/L)/20 (mg/L), and she had a hospital stay because of renal failure. Two months after the termination of mirtazapine, the serum ALT normalized at a tricyclic antidepressant challenge test. Although laboratory findings were not significantly different between pre- and post-therapy, follow-up liver biopsy showed preserved architecture and stained negatively for mirtazapine. A great number of mirtazapine-related reports include hepatitis. This is
