Photoshop Elements: Photoshop Elements lets you manipulate and create digital images. It's not a bitmap editing system, like Photoshop, but it's easier to use than Photoshop is for beginning users. It is often packaged with Photoshop as well, and is available as a stand-alone download. GIMP: GIMP (the GNU Image Manipulation Program) is a bitmap editing program for Windows, macOS, and Linux platforms. The free GIMP is often packaged with other GNU products, and is incredibly powerful. An inexpensive upgrade option is GIMPShop, a downloadable program that includes more than 200 plug-ins to extend GIMP's functionality.

What's New In?

Q: Delphi XE2 OdbcDataSource ignores connection string I'm new to Delphi and I wanted to create a simple Project which connect to SQL Server and then displays it. I tried to use both ODBC-ODBC and ODBC-DE's. The problem is, when I change the connection string in the connection manager, the connection seems to be ignored by the OdbcDataSource component. I do not know, why. Here's my code:

procedure TForm1.Button1Click(Sender: TObject); var OdbcConn : TIdOdbcConnection; OdbcDataSource: TIdOdbcDataSource; begin OdbcConn := TIdOdbcConnection.Create(self); OdbcConn.ConnectionString := 'Driver={SQL Server};Server=mypc\SQLEXPRESS;Database=mydb;'; OdbcConn.Open; OdbcDataSource := TIdOdbcDataSource.Create; with OdbcDataSource do begin DriverID := 'System.Data.SqlClient'; DatabaseName := 'mydb'; LogonPrompt := false; UserID := ''; Password := ''; end; OdbcDataSource.Connection := OdbcConn; ShowMessage(OdbcDataSource.ConnectionString); end; ....

A: Your ConnectionString in your IDbConnection component is the application-wide connection string. It takes precedence over the component-based connection string (via connection manager). The component-based connection string only takes precedence over the form-based connection string, the parent window, and the current thread. When a form loads, the form's connection manager is created. The connection string in the connection manager (FormName) is what you see in the connection manager, not the application-wide connection string (clinic, in your case). If you change the connection string in your form, it will only affect the component-based connection string. To change the application-wide connection string, you would use the DDCon_SetApplicationName method: (1) Add a ref to DDCon proced
