'Extremely unfortunate' one-punch death in'very unclear' cases An 18-year-old woman is dead after being punched by a man during an altercation at a popular city bar late Saturday night, the BC Coroner's Service said in a statement. Two men were arrested after the incident at the Keg Bar at 458 Granville St. W. Police said a fight broke out at around 11:30 p.m., and an 18-year-old woman was repeatedly punched by a man that fled the scene. She was taken to hospital where she later died.'s what?" "Oh, what would you care?" "I'll be the judge of that." "If that's the best you can do, fine." "That's the best I can do." "Then I can call my lawyers for all the details I'd like." "Fine. Call 'em." "But, Dad, they cost a lot of money!" "Well, I'm so glad I saved up for that when you were in high school." "Oh, like you saved to get me a lawyer!" "Never mind." And so on. I was still a total jerk. Until 2013. When, finally, the two of us reached a neutral ground. Which was — oh, what's the right word? Devotion? That's it. Devotion. We both set aside all the bickering and the ganging up and the scorekeeping, and we were, in a word, devoted. To each other. We didn't need to fight anymore. We could laugh about it. And move forward with our lives. The daughter I became had, at last, started to find her voice.1. Field of the Invention
