there a way to explicitly tell a url-pattern to use certain pattern-filter? For example, suppose we have: - a `resources` directory, which contains static and non-static resources.
- a `webjars` directory, which contains static and non-static webjars. - a `webclient` directory, which contains static and non-static webjars and webpages - a `web` directory, which contains any other non-static web content So, with Spring Framework, we have:
_src/main/resources/_l_static_resources.css |_static_resources.js _src/main/webjars/_
l_static_webjars.css |_static_webjars.js _src/main/webclient/_l_static_webclient.css
l_static_webclient.js |_webjars/css/my_css.css |_webjars/js/my_js.js l_webclient/css/my_css.css |_webclient/js/my_js.js _src/main/web_ l_index.html Now I want: * _src/main/resources/_ to be processed by the `resources.controllers.MediaController` - `resources.controllers.media.MediaController` filter * _src/main/webjars/_ to be processed by the `webjars.controllers.MediaController`
- `webjars.controllers.media.MediaController` filter * _src/main/webclient/_ to be processed by the `webclient.controllers.MediaController` - `webclient.controllers.media.MediaController` filter * _src/main/web_ to be processed by the `MediaController` - `595f342e71`
