Djibo James Wakayo Assensoh Djibo James Wakayo Assensoh (born 14 January 1954) is a Nigerian politician who was elected as a Senator for Kogi West Senatorial District on the platform of the Alliance for Democracy. He was appointed as a member of a committee to review the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between the Federal Government and the Peoples Democratic Party (PDP). Assensoh, a lawyer, was born in Adeje, Lagos State, Nigeria. He was the candidate of the People's Democratic Party for a seat in the Nigerian House of Representatives in the Adeje electoral district, but he lost to the All Progressives Congress candidate. He contested the seat for a member of the Lagos State House of Assembly in Kogi Central in the February 21, 2007 governorship election, which he won. His party appealed the election, but the result was upheld by the Independent Electoral Commission on May 22, 2007. Assensoh was elected as a member of the Senate in June 2007. In October 2007, Governor Godwin Obaseki recommended to the Senate that N60 million should be allocated for the rehabilitation of Kogi West Senatorial District. Assensoh argued that the funds should instead be used to rehabilitate the whole of Kogi West Senatorial District. Governor Obaseki vetoed the amendment to the Finance Bill. As a senator, Assensoh was chairman of the Committee on State Government (2009) and the Committee on Local and International Organisations (2009–10). He was also on the Committee on Education (2009–10); the Committee on Transport and the Committee on Energy. He was appointed Chairman of the Senate Committee on Local Government, Housing and Urban Development in July 2011.
