Last month I installed LibreOffice on my Lenovo T460S with Kubuntu 15.04. My experience was good until today (23.10) when I didn't find any new version of LibreOffice. Since I would like to have a multi-platform solution, I decided to install Collabora Office in Ubuntu 15.10. I installed the available packages (libreoffice-fresh, libreoffice-texmaker, libreoffice-writer and libreoffice-calc) After that, the graphical configurator tells me that: "Could not find an interpreter to run the command './repository/bin/ecal-icon_compact_calc_gui_32.so' in the PATH environment variable". I tried to follow the instructions from the Official LibreOffice Website on the same topic but with no success. Can you please help me? A: LibreOffice doesn't make that many changes between releases so it is safe to assume the packaging is unchanged. This link on running the in-built LibreOffice on Ubuntu 16.04 does a good job of explaining how to make it work, so I'm copying it in to answer for posterity. # Creation of test document #ubuntu 16.04.1 ~/.local/share/repomo/user/libreoffice/4/config/test.xml d0c515b9f4
