To elucidate the pathologic significance of different MHC Ag expression between Peyer's patches (PPs) and lymph nodes (LNs), we examined the relationship between PPs and LNs in terms of the primary response of T cells against SRBC. In ICR mice, PPs were removed bilaterally, and 4 days later, the draining popliteal lymph nodes (PLN) and spleens were removed from the mice. The phenotypes of Ag-positive cells in PPs and the draining PLNs and spleens were then determined by in situ immunofluorescence using monoclonal antibodies against different MHC Ags. The results obtained with PPs were summarized as follows. (1) PPs showed various degrees of infiltration of CD4, CD8 and NK cells during the primary response. (2) In mice that responded to SRBC, CD4 cells in PPs and the draining LN showed extremely diverse Ag expression patterns, while CD8 cells showed either relatively stable or high Ag expression. (3) CD8+ cells were observed in the interfollicular zone in PPs, although PPs showed poor Ag expression. (4) B cells, alpha beta T cells and gamma delta T cells were observed in PPs at higher ratios than in the draining LN. (5) Furthermore, the distribution patterns of subpop

Human circulating proteome: multiplicity of roles and potential biomarkers. The serum proteome reflects the proteolytic activity of proteases. The fact that small molecules can effectively target and modulate protease activity provides an additional means to modulate the serum proteome. A review of the circulating proteome is, therefore, a valuable insight into the potential of small molecules as regulators of important human processes. We critically explore the potential of small molecules to affect the circulating proteome, with particular emphasis on the complement system and clotting cascade. + 4 = 3 * y f o r y . 0 S o l v e - 7 5 * i = - 8 1 * i + 6 0 f o r i . 1 0 S o l v e - 5 0 * s = 5 5 + 3 7 5 f o r s . - 8 S o l v e - 1 1 * c + 1 9 * c = 2 4 f o r c . 3 S o l v e - 1 3 - 5 = - 1 2 * o f o r o . 1 S o l v e 0 = - 1 2 * n - 5 + 1 7 f o r n . 1 S o l v e
