registration of the bioelectric activity of the heart during acoustic stimulation]. A technique is described for registration of the intracellular bioelectric activity of the heart

(IEA) during acoustic stimulation by registration of biopotential from the cell surface of the myocardium. The technique was used to investigate the effect of acoustic stimulus on the first-order differential of heart, to study in animal experiments the effect of noise exposure on heart and in two-three hours to study the IEA during noise exposure. The obtained results permit to some extent to solve a number of practical problems related to occupational noise exposure by the personnel of major shipyards during winter. As part of a media blitz, the Clinton campaign has placed an ad urging Americans to “tell Donald Trump to stop bullying kids on Twitter.” The ad was released Friday at 9 a.m. Eastern, the same time Trump’s midnight infomercial mocking “The Apprentice” debuted. It features a group of kids doing a chant about Trump’s love of bullying and comparing his campaign to “Planet of the Apes.” Here it is in full: The narrator goes on to explain that the issue here is “kids” and suggests that Trump has a “disability” that prevents him from behaving himself. “Donald Trump’s disability is his character. He won’t even say his name. Donald Trump is not just running for president—he’s running for president on bullying and harassment. You can see Donald Trump’s disability when you watch him tell 1cdb36666d
