
effect of ascorbic acid on adriamycin in murine leukemia L1210]. The combination of ascorbic acid (AsA) with adriamycin (ADM) enhances the anticancer effect of ADM. The present study was to investigate the chemosensitizing effect of AsA on the antitumor activity of ADM in mice leukemic cells L1210. AsA was administered by intravenous injection at a dose of 100 mg/kg/d x 2 in combination with ADM at a dose of 1.0 mg/kg/d x 2. The activity of antitumor response by ADM in combination with AsA was demonstrated by tumor growth inhibitory rate on days 4, 10, 15, 20 and 25. AsA treatment was more effective in enhancing the antitumor activity of ADM than in inhibiting the cardiac injury induced by ADM. The study indicated that AsA might serve as a promising adjuvant to ADM.// // Subscribers.swift // Rx 648931e174
