Development of a porcine model of Staphylococcus aureus-induced pneumonia and intra-alveolar abscesses. To develop a reproducible porcine model of Staphylococcus aureus (S. aureus) pneumonia and abscess formation in order to assess the effects of host immune response and antibiotic treatment in comparison with well-established mouse models. Porcine bronchial explants obtained from 6-week-old cross-bred pigs were infected ex vivo with S. aureus Newman wild-type strain, and viability and growth were assessed by scanning and light microscopy. Pigs were randomized to receive seven intranasal (IN) doses (28 day intervals) of S. aureus or saline between days 14 and 28, and euthanized on day 29. Bronchial explants were washed and stained using haematoxylin and eosin (H&E) or were digested and stained using a modified acid-fast technique. Lungs were sectioned for histopathological analysis. In our model, infection with S. aureus Newman strain within the bronchial explants resulted in rapid and extensive microbial growth which was completely eliminated by day 29. The lungs showed both intra-alveolar and peribronchial abscess formation and necrosis, confirmed by H&E staining and modified acid-fast staining. The porcine model offers a suitable model for the study of bacterial pneumonia in which the abscesses were reproducibly formed in association with necrosis. Furthermore, this model enables the assessment of treatment strategies for S. aureus pneumonia, and is thus more appropriate as a preclinical tool for the selection of new antibiotics and immunotherapies. While Amazon and Apple are shutting off access to Amazon and Apple music, Apple Music and Spotify, respectively, they've made music available elsewhere. Spotify offers music in a range of audio and video formats via SmartThings on the device maker's platform and Amazon offers it via Alexa and the Google Assistant, although Google has also said its All Access streaming service, which launched earlier this year, is exclusive to the Google Assistant on Android and the Pixel devices. Apple has a clause in its contract with its music labels that allows it to unlock iTunes to rival platforms for 90 days after the launch of its latest major service update, so it appears as though it will be offering limited support to its competitors from October.
