Court of Appeals of Alaska. November 15, 1991. 789 Susan Orlansky, Asst. Public Defender, and John B. Salemi, Public Defender, Anchorage, for appellant. Cynthia M. Hora, Asst. Atty. Gen., Office of Sp. Prosecutions and Appeals, Anchorage, and Douglas B. Baily, Atty. Gen., Juneau, for appellee. Before BRYNER, C.J., COATS, J., and ANDREWS, Superior Court Judge.[] OPINION BRYNER, Chief Judge. Thomas A. Wykle was convicted, following jury trial, of first-degree robbery and first-degree sexual assault. He appeals, challenging the sufficiency of the evidence to support these convictions. We conclude that the evidence was sufficient. On March 20, 1990, Thomas Wykle forced his way into the bedroom of a woman in her late twenties. He put a gun to the woman's head and told her that he would kill her if she tried to escape. He took forty dollars from her and sexually assaulted her. Wykle was arrested at his home on March 26, 1990. He admitted his involvement in the crime, but denied committing first-degree robbery. He claimed that he had been paid *790 five hundred dollars to scare the woman with a gun in exchange for the forty dollars which he had taken from her. Wykle also told a police detective that, while no money had been taken from the woman, he had broken her finger and wrist. Wykle testified at trial and

Now, it has started the long journey to the goal of keeping patients' physical health as good as possible. This has been made possible thanks to the research conducted by leading scientists throughout the world. Their investigations have led to the development of various drugs and medical procedures that alleviate pain, prevent accidents, and even improve people's quality of life. According to recent studies, about half of the medications that are marketed globally are designed to cure diseases or prevent death. However, the current situation has changed. Today, the number of people who suffer from chronic illnesses and are taking multiple drugs at once has skyrocketed. As a result, the number of annual drug side effects has also risen - more than 75
