It detects and removes all spyware from your system at once, and even blocks spyware from trying to re-infect your computer in the future. SpyHunter is an anti-spyware software designed to detect, eliminate and block various kinds of malicious programs on your computer system. This anti-malware application was designed to protect users from spyware and other types of malicious software. Although it does protect your computer it is not all that difficult if you make sure that you use the right software and you stay away from any kind of dangerous content. SpyHunter attempts to protect your computer by all means, offering all the features a user would expect from a powerful security suite, meaning detecting, removing and blocking any kind of malware. It is very easy to install, as it does not come with any unpleasant surprises and it is over in just a few moments. Completing it brings you to a pretty well-organized layout which is comprised of a few buttons, a navigation panel and a pane in which to display selected items and information. First run processes First and foremost, you should know it will prompt you to choose whether to protect the Internet Explorer homepage or not at the first run. This feature blocks any products' attempt to change it. The following step is to look for and grab the latest security definition updates, and scan your entire system, including rootkits, files, cookies, registry and memory. Backup and restore capabilities and create an exclusion list A custom scan is also available, while you should also know that all the items removed by this tool are going to be visible as a list in the "Backup" section, and it is possible to restore them with just a click of the button. You can set up exclusions, while a dedicated feature to block malicious processes from execution may be configured by adding your very own safe items and ActiveX guarded items. Configure multiple settings and schedule scans The "Settings�

SpyHunter is a registered trademark of Enigma Software.Q: how to return a record without a query? I am familiar with SQL Server but for some reason the guys at the agency which am implementing the system doesn't want to use Sql Server. I am working on a portal to list meetings and I am used to select the meeting from a table containing a list of all the meetings. When trying to reuse some of the code used for this I came across this: SELECT Events.EventId, Events.StartingDate, Events.StartingTime, Events.EventTitle, Events.Description, Events.WhoInvited, Events.UrlEventLink, Events.Picture, Events.Location FROM Events WHERE ((Events.StartingDate = @StartDate) AND (Events.StartingTime = @StartTime)) ORDER BY StartingDate ASC, StartingTime ASC And they want me to return a record without a query, something like (taken from somewhere else): var result = from result in CarRepository.GetAll(vehicles) where cars.Date.HasValue select new { Car = cars, Result = result }; And CarRepository.GetAll(vehicles) just returns an IQueryable instance which is evaluated at runtime. So my question is: is it possible
