Q: Couplings of spin- $1/2$ particles in an external field A particle can interact with other particles through exchange of very massive bosons. On the other hand, these massive bosons can also act as a particle-particle gauge field for another particle of the same type through interaction with gauge bosons of this particle (the latter interaction is mediated by the interaction with other particles of the same type). This interaction makes a particle spin more degrees of freedom, and very often the latter is referred to as the "spin-1/2". I am looking for a common way of describing this coupling/interaction between two spin- $1/2$ particles. To be specific, for a particle (with internal degrees of freedom) of spin s , suppose that there are N massive bosons of mass m and spin s ($s \leq 1$)
