Amazing how some things get a bit of a reaction Even though some people in the history of the world have been accused of being a bit of a cynic I am a big believer in the fact that you shouldn't judge a book by it's cover. This might be an old saying, but I think it's still valid and true. For example, let's take a look at the number of people who claim to have been deceived by a member of show business. If you're like me you'll know that the classics include Elvis, Frank Zappa, and Linda McCartney. Even though McCartney's film of the Beatles shows several years of her relationship with John, and her portrayal was one of total honesty, there were some people who still had doubts. I'm sorry to say but I am one of them. I always thought that the whole McCartney thing was an elaborate hoax. I assumed that those who frequented the Beatles were the truth and I spent a long time trying to figure out why there were so many different stories surrounding their relationship. The great tragedy is that I eventually came to realise that the reason there were so many stories was because there were in fact two people in the relationship; the man who's real name is Paul McCartney and Linda. If I had only taken the time to read this article and look at the comments section you would have discovered the hilarious responses, especially regarding the hair, the clothes, the sunglasses, and the eye make-up. You see if you buy into the theory that Linda was just a cunning con artist who went on to live a successful life you've missed a major point. Some of the comments actually question the fact that he has a scar on his cheek from a broken glass. In the end it's funny because it's true. She did her best to stop people looking at the fact
